1. The first of these is the fact that the number of species of plants and animals which are found in the tropics is much greater than in the temperate regions.
This is due to the fact that the tropics are much warmer than the temperate regions, and the warmth of the tropics allows a much greater number of species to live there.
The second of these is the fact that the tropics are much more fertile than the temperate regions. This is due to the fact that the tropics are much wetter than the temperate regions, and the wetness of the tropics allows a much greater number of species to live there.
The third of these is the fact that the tropics are much more stable than the temperate

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or letter. The text is written on aged, yellowed paper and is mostly illegible due to fading and bleed-through from the reverse side. The script appears to be a historical form of a European language, possibly Dutch or German. The text is organized into several lines, with some lines starting with capital letters or punctuation marks. There are two distinct dark spots on the paper, possibly from ink or damage. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but aged manuscript.

Handwritten title or header in a cursive script, possibly starting with 'Handwritten'.

Main body of handwritten text in a cursive script, spanning the width of the page. The text is dense and appears to be a continuous narrative or list. There are two distinct dark circular marks (possibly holes or ink spots) visible on the page.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a personal letter or diary entry. The text is written on a single sheet of paper with two punch holes visible on the left side. The handwriting is dense and fills most of the page.

Journal of Management Education

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is written in a dark ink on aged, slightly discolored paper. The script is dense and fills most of the page, with some lines appearing more prominent than others. There are several dark spots or ink blots visible on the page, particularly in the middle section. The overall appearance is that of a well-preserved but aged piece of paper with significant handwritten content.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, likely a historical document or manuscript. The text is arranged in several lines, with some words appearing to be in a different script or dialect. The document is aged and shows signs of wear, including two small holes on the left side.

Handwritten text in a cursive script, possibly a letter or a list, spanning the width of the page. The text is written in dark ink on aged, yellowish paper. The script is dense and somewhat difficult to decipher due to its cursive nature. There are two distinct lines of text, one in the upper half and one in the lower half of the page. The first line appears to be a list of items, possibly names or dates, while the second line seems to be a single paragraph or a set of instructions. The overall appearance is that of a historical document or a personal note.
